

The Schüller colour scheme in Japandi style

Herrieden, 20.09.2025

Japanese minimalism united with Scandinavian hygge and combined with ecological responsibility. The colours in the new 2026 Schüller collection are veering towards the Japandi interior design trend. This style is characterised by warm earth tones and light, soft nuances that connect cosiness with calm and focus.

The expansion of the ELBA range in Travertin sand and MODENA in Bergamo walnut effect bring subtle decors into the kitchen and living area. MATERA in sand grey matt AFP and MATERA COLOUR in sepia brown matt AFP add trendy solutions to the range that are perfect for everyday life, making the kitchen a place of homeliness and wellbeing.

New at Schüller, VARESE in oak Siena effect gives the kitchen a warm, dark elegance and, combined with the new SALONA range in six different colours, impresses with its class and quality. Complemented by the new bronze-coloured grip ledges, the dark fronts are highlighted with a feel for design and aesthetics.

Japandi is an important aspect of interior design as well as the trend towards open living concepts and the seamless connection between kitchens and living spaces. Here, openness, lightness and tranquillity are aplenty.

With the new carcass colour sand oak effect, Schüller creates a balanced visual unity between fronts, worktops, support panels, carcass surrounds and plinths – the answer to the ongoing strong trend towards oak and links to nature. The new design means that the range of three standard colours has gained another decor. Open units and shelves are now able to match their surrounds in calming sand oak. The result is a homogeneous, consistent design and a harmonious overall concept.

Soft light colours and matt black combined not only look well thought-out but also elegant. Exclusive to Schüller, the electrical appliance brand JUNO is introducing a new feature in 2026 with MattLite. Hobs and operating panels on ovens and warming drawers are now available with elegant matt black surfaces. In line with this, stainless steel flat screen hoods have also been switched to modern black.

Japandi and sustainability

MATERA gives the utility room a fresh touch of colour. As well as the NOVA front, seven matt MATERA colours are now available – made from 76% recycled material from the circular economy. The fronts are fully recyclable and reflect the Japandi trend's nod to nature.

The anti-fingerprint surface makes MATERA resistant to fingerprints and noticeably eases cleaning thanks to smoother surfaces. High resistance to dry and humid heat as well as many cleaning products emphasises the focus on quality and the sustainability of products – arguments that Schüller retail partners happily use in their sales consultations.

With Japandi, Schüller offers retail partners a great opportunity to discuss trends with private customers and create an emotional connection with the product.
